

EnviroHealth Connections

Summer Institute

*Examine our environment and its effects on human health
—a fantastic professional development opportunity.*

July 18–21, 2005

Johns Hopkins University Medical Campus, Baltimore, MD

"...wonderful, thought-provoking experience."

"We are so fortunate to have access to some of the top programs and people in the Hopkins community"

"There is no better interdisciplinary topic."

For teachers of grades 6–12

All Content areas: Science, Technology, Health, Language Arts, Mathematics, Social Studies

- Morning Sessions — Learn from the experts

Learn about the latest research in environmental health from top Johns Hopkins doctors and scientists.

- Afternoon Sessions — Be on the cutting edge

Make the connection to classroom instruction. Mentor teachers model technology-rich lessons in various subject areas.

Maryland teachers earn 3 MSDE Continuing Professional Development credits.

Cost: $65.00 early registration / $75.00 after June 15, 2005

Includes resource materials, parking, 4 breakfasts and 2 luncheons, and, for those traveling from outside the Baltimore/Washington corridor, overnight accommodations & dinners on the Johns Hopkins Homewood campus.

To register: www.thinkport.org (Click on EnviroHealth Connections)

Contact: Ruth Evans — Maryland Public Television, revans@mail.mpt.org • 1-800-223-3678, Ext. 4380.

Generously supported by:

presented by

&

